“ Dub was my friend's uncle and growing up he always engaged with us even when we were obnoxious teenagers (& hard to be around). I'm certain we got on his last good nerve but he was a character and fun to be around. Several of us kept up with how Dub was doing and see his passing as a sad milestone. We are sorry that his family has lost this good man. Tricia Horton

“ Jackie, my condolences to you. Dub was a lifelong friend of mine. My mother named all his siblings in her book of memories, as they were close neighbors on Mulberry Street. I was about the same age as Iva Jo and had to take the diphtheria shot when she died at five years old. He used to call me or write me a note saying, "Remember, we're railroad folks and we have to stick together!" He attended many of our class reunions held at my house on Killough Road. One night at one of the reunion parties he and I were standing up talking when I reached out and removed a crumb from his tie saying, "Iva would have wanted me to do that." He smiled a great big smile and hugged me. Later, he would remind me how I took Iva's place for a second, and he seemed grateful. He was a true friend for many years. He told me about you and how he loved and trusted you to be there for him. I hope to come to the service tomorrow. - Bridget Hart McElroy

“ I enjoyed working with Dub while employed at Hohenberg/ Cargill Cotton Co. I grew up in Wynne so we always caught up on Wynne news whenever we spoke. He was always a true Southern Gentleman. Tanya Kinman Baldwin
