“ Every time I think of Robert I think of a time back in the 70's, & i had just gotten my divorce. I was on my way to pick my daughter up at my in-law house on a Sunday night, who lived out in the hills from Forrest City. The closest route for me was, where you turn left onto that gravel road at the top of Jake Taylor Hill. Well, I drove a Red 69 VW Beetle, as a lot of you that is reading this from Addison, will remember. Well, it had been raining most of the day & when I got to a place in this dirt/gravel road I buried that Bug almost down to the bumper. As you know there were no cell phone then, but this nice black lady let me use her phone to make a long distance call & Robert was the one I called. It was after 10pm & he & Anne were already in bed. But he said I'll be there in just a little while. Well, I went back out to my bug & I kept rocking & rocking that baby till I got her out. Went & got my baby & came home a different route. Boy, did I hate to see him come Monday morning,. When I seen him coming I just put my hands on my head to keep him from beating me to the ground, haha He said girl I drove them hills till I finally gave up & went home. He said I was scared something had happened to you. I feel like I could have called on him anytime any day & he would have been there. One thing he did that I just didn't like. There was several of us women that worked with him that he had a board that he would tare our butts up on our birthdays, & it hurt more than I think he realized but it was all in having a good time. Robert just know that you were a good friend to many & loved by all that knew you & you will be greatly missed.

“ It was fun to walk into the beauty shop on Friday at noon and see Bobby happily seated on his barber shop throne in the back of the shop. He always had a special greeting for both of us, many times asking me who that guy following me was. Bobby, a distant McElroy cousin, was thoughtful enough to offer his help in moving when Sonny and I joined households almost two years ago. He and Ann were witnesses at our private wedding, something we are grateful to them for. They are two wonderful people we are very proud to call close friends. Friday lunch will never be the same without Bobby.
